LITCHFIELD A CHILD PRODIGY OF NEW TOWNS

This Infant City's Booming Growth Is Stable, However, for Agriculture Is the Attraction—Town Developing Rapidly

Arizona may well regard Litchfield as its child prodigy. Born in the desert and scarcely out of its swaddling clothes, its rapid development and growth is marking it as a boom town of unusual characteristics. Unlike most towns of this class, Litchfield is enjoying a healthy growth. It depends in no way upon the narcotic-like stimulus of the oil fields and mining communities which leaves a deadening after effect. Litchfield is unique in that its rapidly increasing population is attracted by the surrounding agricultural development. Cotton is the magnet which has drawn more than 800 persons to the town within one year.

Litchfield is 17 miles west of Phoenix just across the Agua Fria river, and the town has been established on a part of 15,000 acres of land owned by the Southwest Cotton company. The first ground of this extensive acreage was broken in January, 1917, and now there are 10,000 acres in cultivation. Twelve hundred acres of this is planted in cotton this year. Alfalfa, barley, corn and maize have also been planted and extensive pasturage lands have been leased, where 6,000 head of cattle are being fattened.

Taking Care of Soil
Although cotton is regarded as the principle product, the grazing lands will be retained for a few years and other crops planted to properly fertilize the soil.

In addition to the 10,000 acres of land already in cultivation, 2,300 more acres have been cleared four miles west of Litchfield, preparatory for next season's crops. This leaves 3,000 acres ready for future development.

To irrigate this land, 45 electrically driven pumping plants have been installed, the most important one five miles northeast of Litchfield near the Agua Fria river. An intake has been installed at that point and when the river is at flood, its waters are diverted to irrigation.

Upon this sound foundation of productivity the town of Litchfield has been established and its phenomenal growth has been the subject of widespread comment. The development is marked by a civic interest entirely lacking in the ordinary boom town.

Cotton the Magnet
Oil fields have boosted of attracting a sufficient number of people over night to establish a town of considerable population. Mining communities have similar records while fair sized cities spring up like mushrooms wherever the government established munitions factories during the war. However, the uncertainty of these transitory places of habitation proved a bar to civic interest. But Litchfield is proving that it believes in the permanency and stability of its environment. The town has two sprinklers in operation, is improving all its streets, putting in curbing and sidewalks. It has a grade school of four buildings, all modern, and is now building an auditorium which will be used as a theater and dance hall. A Catholic school is under construction and plans are being made to build a hospital and Methodist church.

At the present the town has a plain mill, garage, machine shop, grocery store, pool hall, drink stand and public swimming pool 40 by 100 feet. Members of the Southwest Cotton company have located their organized Sahuara club in the town, the company furnishing the building, furniture and library.

"The Wigwag"
One of the features of the town is a nine-room modern house called the Wigwag which is used as the conference house of the company officials. The house is built on the rustic plan of rough redwood. Its unique and attractive structure make it one of the show places of the town. Directly in front of this house is a desert plot in which representative plant specimens are grown. In striking contrast about this plot is a carefully kept green lawn. The house faces a park of six acres in which flowers, shrubbery, trees and tropical plants grow. The town site is shaded and ornamented with 18,000 trees and shrubs and an order has been placed for 30,000 more to be used there.

Developing Town
L. A. Wilkie, town superintendent, who has been with the Southwest Cotton company since it established Litchfield, is working 500 men on the streets planting trees and shrubbery.

Improving the streets and laying sidewalks. The construction of a grand stand for the athletic field will soon be begun. As soon as Maricopa county paves the Yuma and Buckeye roads, the Southwest Cotton company will pave the road running north from Buckeye road into Litchfield, and when the Yuma road is paved, they will pave east and bridge the river, giving the citizens of Litchfield 45-minute service into Phoenix.

Other enterprises promised the town in the near future include a refrigerating plant and a slaughter house, the latter to be located just outside the corporate limits.

P. W. Litchfield, vice president and factory manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, will build a home on a plot of ground just north of the town site within a short time. It is estimated there are about 4,000 people in the Litchfield district, a fourth of which are Americans and the balance Mexicans.

NOV. 11 IS VICTORY DAY, AND WON'T THE PEOPLE CELEBRATE?

Lord, what a night it was in America, that night of November 11 a year ago! Do you remember the madness that gripped the country that night and that day. The whistles blowing and everybody coming downtown dressed, half dressed and not dressed at all? The wild celebration? The liquor that flowed, even in "dry" country? The general rejoicing when the nation found out that the fighting had ceased? Of course every person in America and Phoenix remembers Armistice Day—except, of course, those who were overseas at the time. They, too, remember it, but in a far different way. Was it not the thrilling day that the average American put in? And wasn't everybody sure that the day would go down in history along with the Fourth of July and Washington's birthday?

November 11, 1919, little more than a year away, is the first anniversary of Armistice Day or Victory Day, whichever term one prefers. Quite a different day than was November 11, 1918, and the world has changed considerably. But November 11, this year, will be celebrated fittingly as a great anniversary in American history.

While few cities or towns have taken up the celebration movement, the American Legion has started the ball rolling and every post in the nation is preparing some kind of plans for celebrating Victory Day November 11. And now that the ball is rolling, practically every town in the United States will have a big celebration ready for the observance of the momentous day.

While nothing is known of such plans as have been made, and since the preparations have only just begun, it is understood that the local post of the American Legion will soon be planning a Victory Day celebration in Phoenix. Such a celebration, of course, will be a real work of art, with a big parade, speaking, music, and everything else that goes to make a celebration amount to something. Some sort of a reunion of service men may be included in the plans in various parts of the country.

However, it isn't quite time to talk about the plans for the celebration yet, for most of them aren't made. But with the American Legion leading the nation in celebration movement, there is bound to be a celebration. And if there is a celebration anywhere, Phoenix will have one, too.

And oh, boy, just wait till it comes off!

SERGEANT FLITTON RETURNS TO HOME

Sergeant Homer K. Flitton of 1599 West McKinley, returned to Phoenix last night after having been in the army for two years. He was of the contingent from G. H. Q. at Chaumont and returned to this country with the records of the A. E. F.

Flitton left here with the second draft contingent, going to Camp Funston, Kansas, where he was assigned to Battery E, 340th Field Artillery. Later he was transferred overseas, and assigned to B company at G. H. Q., and placed in the records office.

During his stay overseas he traveled around considerably and saw practically all there was to see of that portion of Europe.

EXCHANGE LETTERS ON INVESTIGATION OF MOB LYNCHINGS

Early this month, R. D. Simpson, a colored citizen of Phoenix, wrote a letter to Senator M. A. Smith with reference to an investigation of the crimes of lynching and mob violence. To this he received the following reply:

"Washington, Oct. 9.
"R. D. Simpson,
"Phoenix, Arizona.
"Sir:
"I have received your letter giving me the information that there will be introduced in both houses of congress, a bill calling for a nation-wide investigation of lynching and mob violence. I have no objection to an investigation of mob violence of any kind, but all the investigations in the world will not stop mob violence whenever a woman is ravished outrageously by any man, white or black. All the investigations and laws will not stop outraged manhood from punishing such crimes as these. I deplore the fact, but still this condition exists in the North as well as in the South, in the East as well as in the West. As I said before, I have no objection to the investigation and to having the law take its course even in these outrageous cases, especially in those states where capital punishment obtains.

"Very truly,
"M. A. SMITH."

The reply was not quite satisfactory to Mr. Simpson, who thereupon addressed the following open letter to Mr. Smith:

"Hon. Senator Smith:
"Though you claim to abhor lynchers and mobists, according to your letter of the 9th an investigation of a nation-wide investigation of mob violence would receive scant support from you. Now, we doubt the veracity of the stories circulated as to the causes of a number of lynchings and riots that have occurred in the last few months and would gladly welcome an investigation, nation-wide in its scope.

"Since January 1, 1919, one thousand negroes have died at the hands of mobs and lynchers. Did they die on account of crime, or was it because they were black? Or the Texas riots? Or the East St. Louis riots? Or the Chicago riots on that account? Or the Washington that caused the riots there some time ago swore on oath that she falsified? Is it not a fact that not one iota of evidence was secured against anyone in Omaha, let alone the man, Brown.

"I do not believe that I would for one moment protect any negro who is guilty of such a heinous crime. Mr. Smith, we stand for an open investigation, let the consequences be what they may, the punishment be severe or otherwise.

"R. D. SIMPSON,
"Pres't Local N. A. A. C. P."

NOTED ENGLISHMAN ARRIVES TOMORROW FOR SPEECHES HERE

A. F. Whyte, youngest member of the British parliament and editor of the "New Europe," a high class London political review that is attracting wide attention overseas, will arrive in Phoenix tomorrow to make two addresses under the auspices of the Rotary Club. Mr. Whyte, who is making an extended tour of this country, will bring to Phoenix some of the latest ideas on international politics, European conditions and other topics that are now interesting the world.

According to the latest advices received here, Mr. Whyte will arrive tomorrow morning. At noon he will speak at the luncheon of the Rotary Club, and tomorrow night he is scheduled for a public address at the high school auditorium. He will also be invited, if possible, to address the high school students tomorrow morning. The subjects of his addresses have not been announced.

Although the youngest member of parliament, Mr. Whyte is probably best known for his work with his political review, which is proving very popular with the younger men.

MUST MELT BELL IN TOWER

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)
The two-ton bell which hangs in the tower of the city hall has made the tower unsafe, but the bell is so large it would be dangerous to try to take it down, so it is to be melted right where it is with acetylene blow torches, such as are commonly seen in use by workmen repairing car tracks.

Building Commissioner McKelvey pronounced the tower unsafe as long as the bell remains, because the steel supports have become corroded. Moreover, he said, an attempt to lower the bell would be very dangerous, therefore the decision to take it down a bucketful at a time.

The only time in recent years that the bell has been run was the day of the armistice celebration. It was rung when the building was constructed in 1904. The bell cost about $2,000. The expense of removing it will be about $1,500. It is six feet high and four feet in diameter at the base.
